

Howdy!

Welcome from the Associate Head for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

The Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences maintains a leadership team that encompasses core areas of study, training, and support, including undergraduate, graduate, faculty, and staff members. In September 2020, the inaugural position of Associate Head for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion was added to the roster. The general duties of this position involve leading selected activities at the department level, contributing to department meetings and campus reports, plus developing programs to support faculty, students, and staff in recruitment, retention, and recognition efforts related to diversity, equity, inclusion, and advocacy on behalf of the department.

About Dr. Adrienne R. Carter-Sowell, Associate Professor, Lab Director for Science for a Diverse Society Research Group, & Associate Head for Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion for the Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences (PBSI), jointly appointed in the Interdisciplinary Critical Studies Program at Texas A&M University

Since 2010, Dr. Carter-Sowell has demonstrated more than a decade of successful leadership as a funded researcher, plus as a valued scholar-practitioner, mentor, and faculty member at Texas A&M University. Dr. Carter-Sowell has initiated and nurtured improvements in the campus climate for diversity by means of teaching and curriculum development. She has demonstrated excellence in scholarship and service to address inequality. As Associate Head of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI), Dr. Carter-Sowell is proud to chair the DEI Core Committee that represents students, faculty, and staff from each research concentration area of the PBSI department.
